REPORT

OF

SUPERINTENDING SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

Your committee having attended to his duties, would submit the following report:

The schools of the town, upon the whole, have had better teachers than last year, and some of the schools have made much better progress.

DISTRICT No. 1.

This school was during the year under the instruction of Miss Laura A. Burnham, of Vermont. Miss B. is a superior teacher, having had much experience in district schools, and also in high schools. It may be said of this school that it never appeared better. The scholars were all wide awake, and all seemed ambitious to do their very best. Improvement was made in all the branches pursued, but especially was this true in the reading classes. The singing and gymnastic exercises added much to the interest of the school. Besides the usual branches of study, much information was given upon matters of history and other useful topics. It was a good school, taught by a live teacher.

DISTRICT No. 2.

Miss Ella F. Hanson, of Auburn, teacher. This was a good school. The order was good, and the progress, especially in arithmetic, excellent. This school is made up mostly of large scholars, and with Miss H. for an instructor, they did justice to themselves and credit to the school.

DISTRICT No. 3.

Teacher, summer term, Miss Grace G. Robinson, of Plymouth. Miss R. was a graduate of the State Normal School, and proved herself to be a competent and valuable teacher. She was thorough and progressive in her instruction, firm and decided in her discipline. The order of the school was excellent. The oral instruction in grammar was very interesting.

Teacher, winter term, Miss Hattie J. Hoit, of Meredith, another graduate of the Normal School. Miss H. won the love of all her pupils, by her pleasing manner and kind address. She was very thorough in her instruction. Being perfectly familiar with all the branches taught, she needed no text-book in recitation. The examination was highly creditable to both teacher and scholars, and seemed more like a High school than some of the district schools in town. There was one class in geometry, one in philosophy, one in physiology, and one in algebra. Such schools are an honor to the town, and we hope Mr. Sargent will be committee another year.

DISTRICT No. 4.

Teacher, summer term, Miss M. Wentworth. This is a good school, but did not quite come up to its usual level. Miss M. labored hard and with quite good success.

The winter term was taught by Miss Fidelia F. Adams, an old and experienced teacher who needs no comments from us. Suffice it to say that under her instruction No. 4 did its "level best" and perhaps a little better. Some of the older scholars left to attend the High school, which tended to take from the interest of the closing examination. All the classes were good.

DISTRICT No. 5.

Teacher, Mrs. Julia A. Eaton. Only one term of twelve weeks was taught in this district. We missed some of the older scholars, whose scholarship in previous terms had made it so successful. Mrs. E. labored for the good of the school, and not without profit. The order was good, and the progress commendable.

DISTRICT No. 6.

Teacher, Miss Alice J. Putnam, of Hooksett. Miss P. seems well adapted for this school, as she always succeeds finely. The school this year was much larger than heretofore, but the ages of the scholars were much below the average of the schools in town. There was only one scholar sixteen years of age. The recitations were prompt, the progress apparent.

DISTRICT No. 7.

Teacher, Miss Mattie Sanborn. This was her first school and she did well. Considering the condition of the school-room, and the small number of pupils, no teacher's reputation can be established or injured. To this time-honored tabernacle we would say, "halo and farewell."

DISTRICT No. 8.

Teacher, summer term, Miss Fannie M. Emerson. This was her second term in this district, and she succeeded to the satisfaction of both parents and committee.

Teacher, winter term, Frank H. Rowe, of Manchester. Mr. Rowe was a graduate of the Manchester High School, and proved himself on examination, amply competent to instruct this school. But for reasons unknown to your committee, he failed to get the good will of some of the larger boys, who left school at the end of the first week. The prosperity of the school was materially affected by their withdrawal, and the closing examination was attended by only five scholars. For this reason we were unable to judge of the progress of the school. Had the parents of the district given Mr. Rowe their sympathy and support, we believe he would have kept a good school. As it was, it must be counted a partial failure.

DISTRICT No. 9.

Teacher, Mrs. M. J. Dolber. This school is in many respects difficult to manage by the same teacher two terms in succession. But Mrs. D. whose long experience has taught her how to use various expedients in the discipline of a school, got along very well. That she labored hard, no one can deny, and if any scholar did not learn, it was not her fault. The examination passed off pleasantly, and the recitations were prompt and well committed. One class in algebra did finely.

DISTRICT No. 10.

Teacher, Miss Dora M. Batchelder. Miss B. was not the right teacher for this school. It needs one older and more experienced. In some other school she may succeed better.

Teacher, winter term, Miss Alice D. Bean. The school appeared better than in the summer. Miss B. won the love of her scholars and labored for their improvement.

DISTRICT No. 11.

Teacher, Miss Clara A. Rowe. The smaller scholars in this school excel. There are some very good readers and speakers among the children. Miss Rowe was a favorite with all her scholars, and gave good instruction and maintained good order.

DISTRICT No. 12.

Teacher, Miss Lizzie E. Crane. With the exception of two or three scholars, this is a backward school. Miss C. met with her usual success in the discipline of this school, and proved herself fitted for the position.

DISTRICT No. 13.

Teacher, Miss Emma E. Neal. It is enough to say of Miss Neal that she has taught this school a number of terms with the same unvarying success. The school was much smaller than formerly.

DISTRICT No. 14.

Teacher, summer term, Miss Lucretia F. Perkins, of Manchester. This was her first school. She was a good scholar, but lacked ambition.

Teacher, winter term, Miss Fanny M. Emerson. The school appeared well at its close.

REMARKS.

To have good schools, three things are essential,—pleasant surroundings, good teachers, parental support. A school-house well situated, with pleasant scenery without, and adequate furniture within, has much to do toward the success of a school. Clean white walls, a sufficient amount of blackboard, with outline maps hung around the room, not only add to the pleasantness of the school, but tend to its prosperity as well. Besides all this, good ventilation and easy benches add to the comfort and health of the scholars. There are some such school-houses in town. There are others, the wonder of which is, how the scholars do as well as they show. They must, as in No. 7, do it in spite of their surroundings.

GOOD TEACHERS.

In every case in town where good teachers have been employed, there have been good schools. Some that heretofore have taken the lead, have in one or two instances sunk a little below their usual level. Others below the average standard have taken the highest place. The difference in each case lay wholly with the teacher. Give any school, however backward it may be, a competent teacher, and there will be a successful school; but a poor teacher will injure the reputation of the very best. It is with teachers as with every other calling, that the cheapest are often the dearest, in the education of children. Secure the best, and pay them for their work, and the result will over-balance the extra outlay. Eight weeks' school with a first-class teacher, is better than twelve with a second-rate one.

PARENTAL SUPPORT.

Good teachers cannot warrant a good school in every case, if parents withhold their sympathy and aid. Parents should support the teacher in the maintenance of good order, and the enforcement of wholesome rules. Districts where this support is given hardly ever have any trouble with the teacher. Scholars will always take advantage of division or lack of sympathy on the part of their parents. Parents should encourage the teacher by their presence in the school-room. By so doing, they could gain a right estimate of the school and its worth. Parents should in no case hear their children's complaints without investigating for themselves.

HIGH SCHOOL.

For the past two winters an excellent High school has been taught by Mr. E. M. Vittum, a student from Dartmouth College. The standard of scholarship has been very much raised in those districts that have been under his tuition. The present term has been very successful, nearly all the advanced scholars in town attending. Such a school should be continued annually. Thereby good teachers may be produced from among the scholars of our own town. Parents, you cannot do too much for the mental and moral cultivation of your children. Character is worth more to them than a rich legacy of gold. The fathers are passing away. The coming generation demands of your successors, solid worth in head and heart. It looks for a broader culture, a higher manhood. See that you disappoint it not.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

N. C. LOTHROP,

Superintending School Committee.
